

A measuring instrument, not a SaaS landing page.

Pure black ground. Olive-tinted hairlines instead of cards. One solid accent block for the primary action. Mono only for things a machine said.

Headlines, the wordmark, stat figures. Geometric and slightly mechanical — carries the instrument register.

Every call routed, recorded and attributed
— read from the provider's own response, never the request.

All reading-size copy. Never below 14px on the site.

Caps labels at 10–11px with 0.16em tracking, and every value a machine produced. Never body copy.

[03] THE MARK

A visor and a three-block mouth: the gateway watches everything through and reports what it saw. Clear space on all sides equals the corner radius. Never recolour the knockout, never rotate, never outline.

[04] THE ONE RULE

The accent never encodes data.

Olive is chrome — mark, buttons, links, section labels, stat figures on marketing pages. Inside tables, charts and status, only the semantic palette speaks. A brand hue that also carries meaning destroys the meaning: if the logo is red, a real failure stops being loud.

DO
● kimi-k2.6	override	$0.0353
● gpt-5.6-sol	429 rate limit		—
States carry the colour. Values stay neutral.
DON'T
● kimi-k2.6	override	$0.0353
